IS STOLEN TWICE;

Chauffeur Who Lost Employer's Car Locked Up When He Reports Loss.

A big seven-passenger touring car belonging to Adolph Seasongood, a wealthy man of No. 28 West Seventyfourth street, figured in a doubleheader joy ride early to-day, as a resuit of which two persons are locked up on a charge of stealing it at different times-the chauffeur and a blonde actress the chauffeur has

Mr. Seasongood keeps his car in a garage in West Ninety-third street and Joseph Hanrahan, thirty-two, of No. 887 Columbus avenue, is his driver. Last night, the police say, Hanrahan took a party of friends out for a joy ride. They stopped at a saloon near One Hundred and Twenthird street in St. Nicholas avenue, and when they came out about 2 A. M. the big automobile had disappeared. A man told Hanrahan he saw "a dashing blonde" drive off in the machine.

Hanraban stopped in at the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau in West One Hundred and Twenty-third street and reported the theft, and was arrested.

The chauffeur's friends reported the theft of the automobile to Policeman Powell of the West One Hundredth street station and gave him the number.

It was not long, Powell says, until a big car came down Broadway, driven by a pretty young woman, whom he stopped. She gave her name as Nellie Elsing, twenty-one, an actress, living at No. 34 West Sixty-first Miss Elsing was taken to the West One Hundredth street station, where she was locked up on a charge of grand larceny. The police are looking for a man she says told her the car belonged to him. She says he invited her to take a drive in it.
